

North Oakland Plastic Surgery

A Passionate Pursuit of Excellence

In today's fast-paced world, many people want and demand results immediately. Instant gratification permeates our society. While appropriate in many aspects of business and even personal life, it is not necessarily a valid concept that applies to surgery, especially in the scope of plastic surgery. Sure, there are many catch-phrase techniques and quick-fix procedures, but these are often not practical or based on time-tested principles. Dr. Richard Hainer of North Oakland Plastic Surgery brings to the forefront a quality of service. He embraces the practice of plastic surgery with passion, and his outcome-driven style lends this doctor a truly professional title.

His credentials and background are exemplary. Dr. Hainer is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons (F.A.C.S.), appointed by his peers, with many certifications from highly respected training institutions. Board-certified in plastic surgery, general surgery, and hand surgery Dr. Hainer is an active member in the American College of Surgeons and the American Society of Plastic Surgeons. These impeccable qualifications create an overwhelming sense of comfort, confidence and trust.

Dr. Hainer strives to make his practice feel comfortable to the prospective patient. He takes the intimidation out of the plastic surgery experience with his warm, inviting office suite and friendly staff, not to mention his down-to-earth demeanor. He spends quality, unhurried time with his patients. He has an uncanny ability to take his professional knowledge and translate it so that patients fully understand the scope and complexity of the issues. His goal is never to sell services to people, but to provide all the information his patients need to make intelligent choices. One can also feel comfortable in the fact that Dr. Hainer is a well-rounded physician who has a multitude of experience in all realms of plastic surgery—cosmetic, reconstructive and hand surgery.

Experience and background training aside, Dr. Hainer believes the difference between a good surgeon and a great one are a balance of knowledge, standards and ethics, professionalism, personality, patient/physician interaction and surgical skill. These qualities together lead to a confident, trusting relationship. It is this confidence, comfort and trust that ultimately leads people to choose Dr. Richard Hainer and North Oakland Plastic Surgery.

Once this relationship is formed, the focus turns to the individual. For Dr. Hainer, the process that leads to the desired outcome is just as important as the outcome itself. Just as each patient is unique, so is their surgical plan. Each treatment plan is individualized and attention to detail is a strong component in every case. According to Dr. Hainer, "The aesthetics of the human body are a harmonious interplay of unique elements that must be addressed on an individual level." Dr. Hainer approaches each surgical case with the latest, proven techniques for optimal aesthetic results. The optimal results are those that meet the doctor's and patient's expectations. His results speak for themselves. Dr. Richard Hainer is a gem among the sea of many who practice this profession.

Despite his impeccable results, Dr. Hainer is his own worst critic. He constantly strives to improve. He considers training an ongoing process. While researching new, emerging techniques and technologies, he incorporates only those that are valid and proven into his own practice. Results in the long run, years from now, may still look as good—if not better—when handled by a professional surgeon who isn't looking to capture the "here and now" phenomenon of quick, trendy surgeries. This truly unique surgeon has much to offer. The art and science of plastic surgery are reflected in the heart of Dr. Richard Hainer and North Oakland Plastic Surgery.
